REPUBLICAN CONVENTION CALL. Primaries to Be Held the Last Tuesday of the Present Month. The West Pittaton Republican borough convention will be hel! at the Town hall, Thursday, Feb. 1, 1894, at today. 7.30 o'clock p. m., to nominate Republican caudidates for the borough offices held a meeting at the residence of Mrs, to be filled at the spring election neld Merrill, on Wyoming avenus yesterday on Tuesday, Feb. 20, 1894, to wit, candidates for office as follows: Burgess for three years, two councilmen for three years, two school directors for three years, one tax collector for three years, one anditor for three years, one high constable for one year, and all other officers to be chosen at this election; also register, assessors and election officers in each election district. This convention will consist of twenty five delegates, apportioned as follows: First district, three; Second district, three; Third district, four; Fourth district, two; Fifth district, Ninth district, two. The primary elections will be held by the Republican vigilance commit-teemen at the various polling places in each election district on fuesday, Jan. 31, between the hours of 5 and 7. The Miners Savings bank has deo'clock p. m. The convention has to be held earlier this year than usual, owing to the change in the law requiring nominations to be filed with the commissioners eighteen days before the election.

PROBABLE MURDER AT SMITHVILLE. Douglas Havord Shoots John Halt.

Latter May Die. During an altercation over an old score Douglas Havord, alias more, snot John Halt at Smithville, late Tuesday night. Havord, it ap-pears, stabbed Halt a short time ago, and robbed him of his pay. Halt, on meeting Havord on the night in question, demanded satisfaction, when Havord whipped out a large self-acting evolver and discharged it four times in quick succession. The first two shots went wide of their mark, the third grazed the left shoulder and the fourth imbedded its if in the left breast about two inches above the heart.

The injured man received no medtions that the theater goers are being ical attendance up to yesterday when he was removed to the hospital at this place, where he now lies in a critical condition. Howard, who did the shoot ing, fled and is nowhere to be found. Both men are colored and came bere from Roanoke, W. Va., to work on the Wilkes-Barre and Eastern railroad at the time of its construction.

EXPLOSION NARROWLY AVERTED.

The Bollers at Hughes' Brawery Explode. Without Loss of Life.

Tuesday afternoon the boilers at Hughes' brewery exploded, fortunately, however, without doing any serious damage to the property, or loss of life The explosion was due to the fireman allowing the water to become entirely exhausted before "feeding." As a consequence the boilers became red hot. Thinking the water was not entirely exhausted, he turned on the feed. He had no sooner done so than crack, erack, went each boiler.

A brewing valued at $1,000 was in course of fermentation at the time and desperate measures had to be resorted to at once in order to save it Workmen were immediately despatched after another botler to the works of J. A. Touhill on North Main street. With the aid of the latter, after a hard night's work, a 90 horse power boiler was placed in position and steam raised in time to save the much, greatly to the joy of Mr. Hughes.

HIS FEET TERRIBLY BURNED.

A Laborer Receives a Roasting at Touhill's Foundry.

George Tiszhervick, a laborer employed in Toubill's foundry on North Main street, was terribly burned while at work Wednesday night. He with others was assisting in the casting of a large piece of work and had about succeeded when the fastenings gavway, allowing the molten metal to fly and run about the floor in streams. All escaped but Tischevick.

In some unaccountable manner, he was slow in getting out of reach and the flying metal drapped into both shoes, badly burning him. When his shoes were removed his feet were found to be horribly roasted.

The injured man was removed to his hospital for treatment. His injuries will incapacitate him from work for at least two months.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

Ellen, wife of Thomas Gerrity, of Port Griffith, died Wednesday evening She was aged 56 years and is survived by a husband, five sons and two daughters. The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 11 o'clock with a mass of requiem at St. John's church. Interment in Market Street cemetery. Miss Margaret Brann, aged 23 years, of Exeter, died at 2 30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, of pneumonia. Funeral announcement later. The funeral of Patrick Price, of Mill street, who died of injuries received at No. 8 shaft Wednesday, will take place Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock, with a mass of requiem at St. John's church. Interment in Market Street cometery.

The funeral of Matthias Coknavche, the Polander who was killed on the Delaware and Hudson Tuesday, will occur this morning. The deceased was a member of the Lithuanian St. Anthony's society. Services will be held at St. Cassimer's church, and interment will be in the Polish Catholic cemetery on Swallow street.

Peter Rumage, aged 79 years, of Duryea, died yesterday. He was formerly a residen tof Ashley, but for some time has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Nathaniel Meade. Funeral Saturday at 1 o'clock, p. m.

NEWS NOTES IN PARAGRAPHS.

Louis Morrison will appear at Music other day. The man had light brown hair, hall Monday evening in "Faust." Since this will be Mr. Morrison's first appearance before a Pittaton audience, it is to be hoped that the theater-loving patrons will accord him a rousing reception. The merits of the play are wealth.

The piece was admirably staged and gave excellent satisfaction. The following ticket has been nominated by Avoca Democrats: Burgess, John J. Curley; councilmen, Thomas Herbert, John Cannon; school directors, James Merrick, Will O'Malley; tax collector, Patrick O'Boyle; constable, P. F. Boylan; high constable, A. A. Curley; register assessors, North district, M. "You know John Habberton," said one of a group of artists who were talking together, "is doing the book reviewing for Godey's now. A few months ago he had a letter from an editor-an editor, mind you -who asked if Mr. Hubberton could possibly secure him a new novel by George Eliot or one by Thackeray. Said he would be willing to pay almost any price if either of them would send him a new story." "Oh, pshaw?" said the rest, with unbounded contempt. "Oh, it's a fact, upon my honor!" "Well, perhaps it is," said the second speaker, "for I know of a book dealer who wrote to a publisher here and asked that he would send him a new novel by Jane Austen, for those he had were selling very well. Poor old Jane! I guess she turned in her grave at that." Everybody laughed, and the long haired youth shook back his bangs and allowed himself to look really intelligent. "Your stories are bad enough," he said, "but they don't equal one which I have heard vouched for by good authority. It is that 'As You Like It' was produced several years ago on the stage of a New York the ater, and part of the audience called for the

Not Eligible Himself.

The retort courteons has seldom been more aptly made than was done by Hon. Frank Hatton of The Post. It will be remembered that Mr. Hatton held the position of postmaster general during the Arthur administration. Over a year ago a would be swell entered the editor's private room at the office of The Post and voiced his griavance that in the Dumblane .ace boarding house, close by, where he re-mained until yesterday, when it was found necessary to remove him to the have the honor of competing with him. Reiterating that the sole objection to the other gentleman entered for the race lay in the fact that he was in the employ of the government, the visitor left, urging Mr. Hatton to attend the races and promising to send tickets by the first mail. This was done-or rather one ticket duly appeared in a note-to be as speedily returned to the donor with the brief message that the editor did not feel himself eligible for the honor conferred, inasmuch as he also had once been in the employ of the government.-Kate Field's Washington.

An Atmosphere In Outer Space, Maybe. That extreme cold paralyzes every vital function is of course a piece of everyday knowledge. But it has been left to Profess or Fictet, who has been conducting some experiments on this subject, to discover that at a temperature of 150 degrees below the centigrade zero there is no chemical action between nitric or sulphuric acid and potash, between oxygen and potassium, though under ordinary circumstances the affinity of the latter metal for oxygen is so great that it will burn if thrown into water, owing to its combination with the oxygen in that fluid. But if the electric spark is played on bodies which have thus lost the power of chemical affinity some new and curious combinations result. The latest investigation, the conclusions of which, however, have been theoretically presaged for some years past, may require us to reconsider the question of the temperature of outer space and the possibility of an atmosphere composed of gases in combination existing there.-London Chronicle.

One of Nature's Harmonies. Nature has her own eye for harmonies, I studied one of her schemes of color the HOW AN ARM WAS LOST.

A Soldier Started Out to Play a Terrible

Joke and Was Worsted. "No, sir, I didn't lose that arm in battle. I lost it while playing the fool," said Major John Leonard as he looked regretfully at his empty sleeve, then swung into line with the story tellers at the Laclede. "It was shortly before the battle of Shiloh. I was out prowling around, looking for fat pullets or anything else that would give the mess kettle a savory odor and finally found myself near the Confederate lines. A long, gaunt Tennesseean, evidently on picket duty, stood leaning against a tree reading a newspaper. He appeared deeply en-gressed, and I chuckled as I thought what a rich joke it would be to sneak up within asy range and plug him.

"I began to sneak. The ground was wet, covered with briers, and I crawled for fully 200 yards, ruining my new uniform to play my little joke. The Johnnie kept on reading. He had evidently not seen me. I stopped to hog myself before I rose up to my hellish work. I took good aim and let The sentry never moved just kept on eding. That made me hot. I reloaded and blazed away again. He never budged. I kept up a fusillade for half an hour without result; then I got so mad I couldn't stand it any longer.

"I was not a little proud of my marks manship, and to have a large, loose jointed enemy of my beloved country stand up there in his butternut breeches and calmly absorb the news while I was chucking lead at him at a distance of 500 yards was too much for me. I reloaded, marched up to within 20 paces of him, took deliberate aim and blazed away. He kept on reading. I clubbed my musket and mad a rush. I whacked him over the dead with force enough to kill a church scandal, then reversed and jabbed my bayonet into him. It

"I started to lose myself in the direction of camp when there came a shrick of de-moniac laughter from a clump of hazels to my left, and three big Tennesseeans stepped out to incercept me. Surrender? Not much. I was mad enough to fight the whole southern confederacy single handed. I made a rush for 'em, and they turned loose, relieving me of this arm and breaking both legs. But I licked the dummy. One of my captors told me afterward that they shook a pound of lead out of it."-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Trees Are the Friends of Men. All trees display constantly and broadly their nature and the marks of the class to which they belong. The oak, elm, willow, birch, beech, together with poplar chestmut and pine, are among our native born trees, and those most familiar to us as the ancient landmarks, remembered so well in childhood-the mulberry, olive, ilex, hemlock, spruce, apple, pear and cherry treesgo to make up the almost sacred circle of friends so dear to us because they are mon uments of other and happier days.

The homestead and its associations recall all the dear old trees so fondly cherished in days "lang syne" and so dear to me now that it is pleasant to write what I know of their history, utility, and why they are valuable as lumber or the more valuable me chanical need which they meet. They all afford the human race a certain amount of reliable service and are the foundation of many industries. They furnish the ships that cover the ocean with white sails and furnish easy communication with all na tions. A Lazy Race.

A lazier man than the average Burman would be extremely hard to find. When it is absolutely necessary for him to work he generally hits upon some method which will save him a lot of exertion. If he wishes to cultivate a piece of ground, he sets light to the brushwood as a cheap, easy and efficacious method of preparing the soil. For two or three years he cultivates that piece of land, and then he sets light to another spot, allowing the jungle to grow in the old place, which will be ready for reburning when the other ground wants a Rice growers dispense with plows, turning loose instead a number of buffaloes, who cut up the saturated soil with their hoofs. When a Burman has carned a little money he immediately proceeds to spend it all, for the Burmese have no ambition to be rich and never hoard. Consequently there are no large landowners, and there being no aris tocracy, the people are as near being on an equality as possible. Poor people are quite as rare as rich people, and the only beggars to be met with are the lepers, who sit on the steps of the pagodas.—Current Literature.

A Natural Currency.

The cheapest coins in the world are the cowrie shells, which are found in the Pacific islands and largely imported into Cal-cutta and London, being sent to the west coast of Africa for trading with the natives. They are pretty shells, and the Africans us them for a variety of purposes, principally to adorn their clothes. In west Africa they pass current, the only objection to their use being the fact that when a man wanted to buy anything he knd to take a wagon load of them along. Copper coins are bad enough, but when a man is forced to carry half a ton of shells to buy a fowl for his dinner the transportation problem becomes of more importance than the question of finance,-Million.

The Ancestry of the Popes The popes have been drawn from all classes of society. Nineteen were sons or near relatives of princes, and an equal number came from illustrious families. Many came from absolute poverty and obscurity. Sixtus VII was the son of a very poor fisherman; Alexander V was the son of very poor and unknown parents, the future pope spending all of his young life in begging on the streets. Adrian, the only English pope, was abandoned early in life by a worthless father and had to subsist on charity until, going as a tramp to find an asylum in France, he entered a monastery or convent as a servant. His real worth was soon manifested in his diligence, and his virtues and intelligence soon won for him the papal tiars. Sixtus V had for a father a poor laborer, a common servant for a mother, and a laundress of vicious habits for a sister. Celestine V was the son of a farmer of no means and little intelligence. Benedict XII spent his childhood in a bakeshop. Urban IV learned the carpenter's trade from his father, as did also Gregory VII. Five of the popes studied medicine before taking holy orders. Julius III was the son of a famous jurisconsult. Benedict XI was the son of a poor notary. The father of Pelagius was a prefect and the vicar of his province. The father of Paul V was a parician of Sienna. The fathers of Eugene IV, Gregory XII and Alexander XII all belonged to the patrician families of Venice, -St. Louis Republic.

The Loi Katong.

The princes and greater magnates of Siam prepare a long toy boat with gilt prow and ornamented stern and cross benches all complete, and sometimes a pinnacled dome incrusted with gold tinsel and pasco ewels. On the benches are placed well dressed dolls in the uniform of the owner armed with mimic paddles. Instead of the hum-ble taper large candelabra are fixed up, blazing with waxlights and showing off the splendor of the ship and its crew. Such "katong" as these are launched in the royal presence at one of the palace landings, and float along between a line of guard ships flaring with oil lamps, amid the discharge of rockets and fireballs and with limelights shining upon them from some gunboat or royal vacht.

The floating of these boats (for the word loi means to float) is not really "to the dead," but only in honor of them, for after a short journey they are recaptured and restored to their princely owners. But they add an imposing feature to the night's dis play, and doubtless yield to their proprie tors, and to all who have a hand in the business, a comfortable conviction that by the whole proceeding they have "made merit" as good Buddhists. It is a rather strange coincidence (If it is a coincidence at all) that the date of the "Loi Katong" cor responds nearly in all years with the old Catholic fete connected with the jour des morts.-London Saturday Review.
